

I am a third-year Software Engineering student at Carleton University with extensive experience in not-for-profit finance and governance. I have held several leadership roles, including VP Finance & Admin of SCESoc, Treasurer of CU Hiding, and VP Finance of Hack the Hill. In these roles, I successfully managed budgets exceeding $150,000, implemented QuickBooks, collaborated with accountants for tax filings and financial reviews, and secured funding from various Carleton sources. As a former Software Engineering Representative on the CSES Board of Directors, I gained a comprehensive understanding of CSES's financial operations, governance structure, and decision-making processes, which has equipped me to effectively manage its finances and uphold its policies. Currently, as CSES Assistant Finance, I am working closely with the current VP Finance to further deepen my knowledge of CSES's financial operations. With a proven track record in financial responsibility, strategic planning, and oversight, I am ready to step into the role of VP Finance and ensure strong, transparent, and responsible financial management for the 2025-2026 term.
