

"Written by C-Eng,
For C-Eng"

The Iron Times

THE VALETINES ISSUE
Weather: Fog so thick you can't see your hand, induced by high pressure loving

FT. a slow descent into madness

MYCSES.CA/IRON-TIMES

FEBURARY 2024

HOW TO GET YOUR GAME TOGETHER

Ex-Twink reports on steps to improve yourself and impress women by standing out

By Em Smulders

As an engineer, our default position in this world is that we are unfuckable. Other degrees are repulsed by us. To a degree... rightfully so; we are filthy disgusting animals who worm around in our own filth. As one of a limited handful of folks within our community to have had the profound HRT induced experience of being an eng-guy and then evolving out of it, I have a niche and (very useful for your sake) understanding as to how, and why, the vast majority of eng-folk are such bitchless weirdos. I intend to detail the six (a mix of serious and unserious advice) unordered steps that can each wholly, or in part, propel yourself on the path of self-improvement to engcel heaven.

Step 1: Get involved!

While this might seem like a thinly veiled favour for Leos to get more shift volunteers, I am genuine about this. In my first year, I moved away from my small town to Carleton, like so many others, and had that sense of first year isolationism.

...(Continued on next page)

BEWARE THE PIPELINE

Disclaimer: This publication may contain offensive material and should not be read by future employers, or really any self respecting student for that matter. Which we certainly aren't. As well, the content in this publication does not reflect the views or opinions of the Carleton Student Engineering Society. If you have any comments, concerns, accusations, assertions, love letters, hate mail (please do not send us hate mail), convictions, or bribes gifts regarding this publication, please direct them to irontimes@cscs.carleton.ca. Or reach out to us on Facebook/Instagram at TheIronTimes, I guess.

One of the things that got me into the world was doing volunteer work in my first year, which was admittedly small but got my foot in the door! Its ok to take small steps into this sort of volunteering as it can obviously be daunting, but small steps, especially in social circles, is something to be proud of sport. Once you start working together with some folks for a long time, you'll start to become good friends with some of them. These folks are your yuppie style connections to fuckdom. On a more serious note, when you eventually become friends with folks, you'll likely go out together--to a bar or other typical university hangout zones. You might make some more meaningful connections at the bar with your friends, or you could even strike up that lucky person on the other end of the bar drinking some god awful IPA shit. One thing to note here is to have a general awareness of authority. Situations like Bill x Monica Lewinsky occur in all communities, including ours. Talk it out, you don't want to pull an unintentional "Clinton" after all.

Source: Jack Astors during VAP is a wonderful world of special opportunities for all engineers!

Knob's editors note: You can also try fucking your Leo's partner. It might work out well.

Step 2: Clean Up Your Act

Ew, stinky engineering! Peeeee-yew! This is where I, the ex-twink, admit to something semi embarrassing that I honestly hope that a reader won't have to bear in my place. Until I started transitioning, I didn't use either conditioner or moisturizer. I cannot understate how much of a difference this makes (this is especially directed at the cishet boys). Not only will this make you not a chemical warfare stink bomb that repulses anything that approaches you, you'll also feel a bit better about yourself. Being clean will cause you to psychoactively heal your soul and will make you feel so much softer and plusher. We all know bitches like 'em soft. Moisturizer wise, honestly get some cheapo shit even, Nivea or Life brand will get the job done. (Knob Note: I recommend CeraVe, or one that has SPF in it.) Do it after you shower or before bed and you'll notice a difference within two weeks; the difference is incredible. Even if you're a straight guy, women love it if a man is unexpectedly soft. You'll become instantly more cuddlable. Some other key items that will do you a million favours on just presenting better: conditioner, especially if you have hair that's a bit longer, some cologne or perfumes (aim for something nice and light to start), an exfoliating glove for your shower and maybe even some nicer soap you can get from a local market or something.

Source: Estrogen and a proper routine has made this girl soft and supple.

Step 3: Be understanding and not a fucking weirdo

You are in the real world now, not high school, and people exist that do not look like or identify you and your direct family. You're gonna meet people from every walk of society, including people who are cooler than you, or people who are significantly more weird. Maybe both! When I went to my first CUE event on campus in 2019 after being the only queer kid in my entire grade in rural Ontario, I got whiplash seeing other people who weren't the white, cis-het male norm. And that's a good thing! If you don't think that's a good thing, go fuck yourself. Eventually, you'll just tend to educate yourself on people after some time, and you'll come across a person who might have been in your shoes before (ie any 2nd years looking at 1st years) and you need to accept those folks. Also, however ignorant they are... WITHIN REASON. If they're a fash weirdo, they can fuck off and don't try and be nice to them. One thing to note is that people do not need to educate you about themselves. That is something that you have to do yourself. So, if you don't want to be shadow banned from the community for being a weirdo, go on Wikipedia or something and read up on different cultures and perspectives. Hell, that'll even help you have some more varied points of conversation you can have that isn't WWII tank history.

Source: I was a weirdo little liberal and now im a twitter commie

Step 4: Get Dressed

Not to sound like a broken record,

but the vast majority of engineers suck. I'll admit, when I came to school, I didn't do most of my own clothes shopping --- I didn't even have any good graphic tees. I didn't own any graphic tees. No hate to those who decide purposefully to dress like a 2013 era valve employee... because after all, dudes rock. But if you are able to get together a new less "I live with my mom" look, a new wardrobe will immediately make you stand out from the crowd in 3300. In this case, looking like you're the only one who wears deodorant is a good thing. If you're really on that student dime too there are plenty of methods to achieving this relatively affordably. Uniqlo is genuinely a great place to get some basic wardrobe pieces like blank shirts and some pants, along with hitting up a Value Village for some outer wear will get you probably the vast majority of what you need. If you want that terminally online advice from yours truly, turn to the internet! EBay has some banger shit especially in outer wear or accessories, check out @3five9 or the "EBay Hat and Jacket Guy" on Twitter to get a genuine idea of what you can find. If rugged and vintage isn't your thing, that's totally ok! I might suggest checking out something more formal, for which I suggest the "Men's wear guy" (@dieworkwear) who has way too much knowledge about the ins and outs of what makes more formal or 'professional' clothing, but notably no women's fashion advice (he is very adamant about this). To the transmascs reading, this dude put together an entire intro to guide specifically for transmascs folk that details how to find, buy and wear properly fitted and modern suits and the like (vintage as well!).

Source: Posting my military surplus fashion on twitter gets all the trans girlies in my DMs (wink wink)

Knob's Note: I think every dude should own a nice pair of jeans. They go with everything!

Step 5: Embrace Yourself (In a good way)

If you've gotten this far into the article, you might be feeling a bit ashamed, wondering: "How am I ever going to achieve all of these fine points to being bitchless?" and that is a fair question to ask yourself. But also ask: are you boring? Engineers tend to generally suffer from the complex "TalkAboutMyself-ism". As your kindergarten teacher might have said to you long ago, its time to start using your ears and not your mouth. Listen to folks and their stories, don't just blabber off about yourself exclusively with no good reason (listen, if you have a good story, at least that's ok). If you do have some cool interests, lean into it! Get into niche microcultures; if you like painting minis, there is certainly people in the community who will also be into it and you can make real bonds with. And... maybe even fuck!

Source: Being genuine gets you laid, personal evidience

Step 6: Venture outside the community

I've now been preaching the word of the community and getting involved, but its equally worthwhile to go outside and touch grass without engineers. There are plenty of local stores and activities around the city that might align with your interests. Myself, for example: I love movies, and I love the cinema (if that's not obvious). One of the things I do to semi force myself out of the house is go to some of our locally owned theatres: Mayfair and Bytown Cinemas! When you're actually there, you can talk to people (crazy, I know) about what is going on (wowzers!!). No matter what sort of things you're into, there's almost certainly a place around the city for it and people who will be equally as enthusiastic about it as you.

Source: I have made a wealth of friends over the years from talking about movies and also gotten laid from it lol

Regardless, be genuine, be kind and clean and opportunity will slowly come your way. Getting bitches isn't the end of the world, it's nice but it's not the be all end all. Don't be a weirdo and at the of the day, love will slowly come your way as you grow as a person. Much love and good luck,

-Em, Former Twink

ROMANCE CAPTURED ON FILM AND WITHIN

The Intertwined Narratives of Her and Lost in Translation

Em "Roommates" Smulders
AERO V

As long as films have been around, so has the romance that's been captured in them. As far back as the 1890s, the very beginnings of film technology, the romantic tendencies of humans have been caught on film. Back in 1896's "The May Irwin Kiss" which, due to the ankle hiding tendencies of the time, featured the incredibly taboo practice of cuddling. As time has evolved, this romance has evolved to into intricate and heart-breaking stories, into cinema classics known the world over such as "Casablanca", "The Notebook" and many others. There are two specific films worth discussing in further detail. Due to their production, their very creation is intertwined so heavily. Both are standout modern classics as result of that; the messages in them, by who had written their scripts. These two films are "Her" and "Lost in Translation", and their creators Spike Jonze and Sofia Coppola, ex-husband and wife.

The two films revolve around a central theme of forbidden love, a tired trope, but repurposed to describe the real circumstances around the dual director's break up. "Her" follows a man in a near-future world that is familiar to us as the viewer, but different enough to always cause an odd sense of unease. This man (Joaquin Phoenix) is lonely, recently out of a bad relationship, in a world that is harsh in coat of paint that pretends to be friendly. Going from date to date, he tries to immediately settle down and fix himself with a relationship anchor. He finally finds comfort in a new, human-like AI with no ulterior motives; an AI with a purpose solely of being a companion. As the movie progresses and the two characters, in this odd and ill-fitting companionship, are developed and become connected, they grow further apart until a rift between them is eventually planted and they separate in a deeply sad, but mutual understanding break. The pair could truly never work together. The ending leaves you with a bittersweet feeling in the literal sense of the word. The audience is robbed of the typical romance ending, the happy ever after, instead supplanted by this mutual understanding leaving you with the bitterness. However, you are still happy for the characters despite the ending, you still are pleased for them in finding a piece in life just without each other in it.

As it should be obvious at this point, "Lost in Translation" follows a similar path, not in writing but largely in story beats. The film follows another lead (Scarlett Johansson) in a foreign land, this time an American woman stuck in metropolitan Tokyo in an unloving relationship. Like "Her", the world she inhabits pretends to be pleasant, catering to her every need as she stays in an upscale hotel, but yet still cold where the workers are only there to please and not to offer genuine human connection. The other lead in the movie (Bill Murray) is similarly stuck in this awkward position of uncomfortable limbo, awaiting his time to finish shooting a commercial in the country before leaving back to an uncomfortable life in the United States. The two fall into a position of love and understanding of one another but soon discover that they are clearly incompatible people and their current and existing lives prevent anything further between them.

It is obvious and apparent at this point just how these two films are similar to one another, one from a man's perspective, and one from a woman's. Clearly, Scarlett Johansson is an insert for Coppola and that Joaquin Phoenix is an insert for Jonze. These two movies detail their own perspectives to one another. This idea of stranger in a strange land exists both within "Lost in Translation" with its brutally true depiction of modern-day Japan, along with "Her" in its near-future disconnect from an exaggerated, modern internet isolationism affect. When considering the reality of the films, it is semi obvious that is in reference to the isolationism of both Hollywood and the nature of relationships in general; pushing one into isolation while still being so ever connected. It needs to be said that of course, this is not the case for all relationships and that many can grow and weave together like holly and ivy. The directors are aware of this fact; that is the true message of the movie, that mutual understanding present in both endings. The type of loving that neither film can provide to itself is a lesson that it is indeed possible if one respects and understands the other. At times, it becomes paramount to be able to recognize the needs of the other, your partner, and also know when their needs are not being met. The best course of action for both parties is a (say it with me now), mutual understanding.

These films offer us a beautifully tragic look into Coppola and Jonze's failed relationship, but also a method to better our own relationships, where we as humans often fail; to fail to get to know our partners and to work to serve the needs of one another. It is very 'me' to use a quote by Marx in an article about romance movies, "To each, according to their own" and I truly believe that Coppola and Jonze understood that both could not fulfill this.

KNOBEL'S MONTHLY FIXATION

The Lament of a Girlfriend in C-Eng

????? "Maelstrumpet" Knobel
SREE III

Hello to all bitches; those bitchfull and those bitchless. Your favourite VPP is back with another installment where I spew fanciful chunks all over a Google Doc. In honour of every single person's favourite holiday, I will be doing a deep dive on something that plagues the life of every girlfriend dating a boyfriend in C-Eng: homoeroticism. Bromance. As a woman who loves women herself, I would never EVER dunk on homoeroticism. In fact, I would love to revel in the beauty in homoeroticism, but it seems as though women are only interested in me while in dark, grungy gay bars and while I'm dating a man. So, for today's issue, I will dunk on it in a very specific and controlled environment.

Hello. My name is Knobel Lois Bobble, and I would like to present myself to you all as the President of the C-Eng Girlfriends Support Club, otherwise known as the CEGSC (pronounced seggs-gee. Hehe. sounds like... sexy.... hehe...). As someone in quite a public relationship, there come highs and lows, as one would expect. What I didn't expect, however, was that my lovely boyfriend, the apple of my eye and the thief of my heart, would sit me down and break some very hard news to me: I am the Side Piece. Not only am I the Side Piece, but I'm the side piece to an entire harem. Not only am I the Side Piece to an entire harem, but I'm the side piece to an entire harem of MEN.

MEN! Never have I been so dejected. I would have understood had it been a beautiful woman, but a MAN?

To understand my boyfriend's harem, I had to dig a little deeper. What is it about men in C-Eng and their intense desire to have sloppy makeouts with their mates on the Reflections dance floor? Why are they drawn to the longing looks across Leo's while they hold my hand under the counter? The answer, dear reader, is simple: Bromance is transcendent. Bromance floats above all else. On the pyramid of love, Bromance reigns supreme, and shits on all below. Bromance is open to all. In fact, my boyfriend has 23 boyfriends. Yes, that number is real, and yes, I am keeping track.

As I watched my boyfriend engage in what can only be described as a passionate bromantic affair, I couldn't help but feel like a mere bystander in their epic love saga. Their bromance transcends mere mortal bonds; it's as if they share a telepathic connection that only manifests in perfectly timed high-fives and graphic squeezes of each other's asses. While I initially thought I was the leading lady in my boyfriend's life, it quickly became apparent that I was just an extra in the blockbuster. It's clear that my boyfriend's heart belongs to another. Or rather, many others.

But fear not, dear reader, for I am not one to wallow in self-pity. No, I am a woman of action. So, I decided to confront my boyfriend about his blatant favoritism towards his group of baddies. His response? "But babe, they know me better than anyone else." Ah, the classic "they know me better" excuse, as if sharing a bathroom stall during a drunken night out somehow makes them soulmates.

conclusion, while I may have lost the battle for my boyfriend's undivided attention, I have gained something far more valuable: the realization that bromance is not just a phase, but a force to be reckoned with. And so, I raise my glass to my boyfriend (C-Eng's Communal Hole) and his many boyfriends, the ultimate power couple of C-Eng, and resign myself to the role of the supportive side piece in their epic love story. Cheers to love in all its forms, even if it means being relegated to the sidelines of my own relationship.

For anyone looking to join the ranks of the CEGSC, please find me in the corner somewhere. I'm waiting for my boyfriend and his boyfriend to leave the bathroom stall.

Continued on page 5...

Broke Dinner

with Bailey Lenihan - EngPhys VI

Welcome back to my cooking blog!

So, it's February. A grey, mushy month that no one likes. You're 1 month into the semester, and you're already dying. Only time to stare out the window at the grey sludge covering the roads. They match the shade of your seasonal depression! No energy to cook, only energy to eat.

Speaking of which, food! It's too cold to go to the grocery store, lingering holiday bills mean no uber eats, and you're tired of cliff bars. To the chest freezer!

Deep Freeze Deep Dive

Ingredients:

- ½ bag of frozen Korean rice cakes - you bought these because you saw a tiktok of Tteokbokki that looked so good that you took the bus all the way to T&T, only for you to get them home and realize that you don't really know how to cook them. They ended up in a stir fry that was too spicy for for you to eat and that you forgot to finish eating.
- 1 bag of frozen spinach - you said "new year, new me!" and decided it was time to actually eat some veggies for once - and that was in 2022. Ew. Throw that out.
- 1.5 bags of mixed veggies - for the other time you decided to actually eat some veggies for once, this time in the form of stir fry.
- 7 italian costco sausages - probably the best thing in your entire freezer, and you're just letting them sit there.
- Garlic butter - another tiktok idea. Probably one that should have stayed an idea. Basically, you make garlic butter, then freeze it in an icecube tray. It's supposed to be easy to just grab a cube out of the freezer and put it in your dish, but all it ends up giving you is a greasy icecube tray, a garlicky freezer, and a bunch of little nuggets that end up in the bottom of your freezer
- 1 bag of feijoada - scratch number 4, this is the best thing in your freezer. It's a pork and bean stew that you made back when you were actually trying to meet your protein goals. Genuinely very good, shop around for a good deal on the meat (I got mine at Produce Depot), get the spices, and you're set for a week.
- An entire pumpkin pie - someone left this at your house for Thanksgiving, and there were 2 other pies so noone ate this one. Should probably throw it out, but that seems like a waste of money.

- 9 smoothie bags - another healthy idea of a different time. A time with more sun, perhaps. The idea was solid; a bag you can dump into the blender with some milk, and you have a smoothie! Couple problems - first of all, I didn't include any bananas, so the smoothies were just kind of full of raspberry seeds. Another problem, when do you ever actually make smoothies? A smoothie is only for buying at Rooster's for $7, not for actually making yourself. And forget bringing it to work - your mug will just leak.
- A ziploc bag full of Toum - really fun and easy to make, so you can have your own garlic potatoes at home.
- 11 Kirkland hot dogs - yes, the ones they sell at the food court.
- 6 chicken thighs - no idea how old they are, but you still refuse to throw them out, "just in case".
- 3 containers of orange chicken - or is it sweet and sour pork? I can't tell, which is probably a bad sign.
- 1 container of dakgalbi - the aforementioned rice cake stir fry.
- 10 tropical muffins - this is a fun one. You made these out of random pantry items while stoned, including pineapple, pecans, and shredded coconut. They're not amazing, but not that bad either.
- 2 servings of cottage pie - another of the more edible meals. This was pretty good, but you are still annoyed by how much you spent on Worcestershire sauce.
- 2 containers of squash pasta - this one was... not good. Not enough salt or cheese, it just kinda tastes like fettuccine in a very bland squash soup.
- 3 servings of taco casserole - an attempt at frosh week meal prepping. You couldn't eat it during the week because of getting heat exhaustion and it just kinda sat there. And now it's too old, and just as sad as it looked when you first made it.
- 1 bag of cherries - this was for sangria? Maybe?
- 1 serving of chicken and dumplings - a nice meal to end on. It's actually made in the slow cooker which - fun fact - can go in the oven? Depends on your model, but usually the ceramic portion can be put in the oven for a bit to crisp things up on the top. This was really helpful for chicken and dumplings.

And that's it! I hope you enjoyed your time through the freezer. A chest freezer is a genuinely good investment (in my opinion) and it makes you feel like a real adult. And I think it's the really simple actions of everyday adulthood, like owning a chest freezer, that really ground you and can make you feel as though you are slowly working towards a goal, even though you may not know what it is yet.

P.S. please come to poetry night <3

& DESIGN: DESIGN SOFTWARES FOR DUMMIES

Aiko Derry
BAS C&S III

To preface, it's me, I'm the dummy. Here's a list of information I wish I knew before I started using these programs/starting a project with them.

Revit:

-Adding families: you don't need to add families from outside of revit, unless you need something really specific. Go to insert -> load autodesk family, and you'll be able to see built in graphics, annotations, etc.

-Moving images/plans on a sheet. You can use your keyboard arrows to adjust the positioning rather than dragging
-No professor will teach you this program. I hate it, I think it's garbage, but it gets used in the real world unfortunately.

Rhino:

-Make shortcuts! Makes it easy to work. (L, for line, etc)
-After extrude make sure to cap your objects, especially if you need to boolean anything
-Blender rendering takes forever, and it's pretty trial and error at the start to see if you have the right brightness setting and shading.

-Use layers! Very important when keeping organized, especially if you need to move things around
-A lot more type functions than you think! Such as ChangeLayer, -BringToFront/BringForward, Import (for images), etc
-Sun settings can be stinky, but you can change your location, time of year, and time of day to show accurate lighting depending on where your site is. You can also adjust strength of the sun for rendering purposes
Save frequently, this bitch loves to crash at the most inconvenient times

Photoshop:

-Name your layers
-Blending modes can make renders look more realistic and have more depth
-Image -> adjustments to edit pictures

is a lifesaver frfr

-Selecting inverse after using the marquee or lasso tool are great when removing large elements
-Tbh i don't know how to use clipping layers, if i've made it this far without using them you should be fine. They may make things go faster editing wise but i don't understand them.

Illustrator:

-Stoke adjustments: they moved the spot where you can change these. Properties -> Stroke (you have to click on the text), then you can change the cap, cap, corner, align, dash, and arrowheads.
-Shape not attached? Left click the shaper tool and select the join tool, circle/highlight the disconnected spots to make it a connected shape
-Artboard: to adjust your page size, you can either drag the shape to size or use the page size presets.

KNOBEL'S MONTHLY FIXATION

An Illustration

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A GF IN C-ENG

LOSERS GUIDE

To Women

Luc "Cupid" Mazzuca
ELEC IV

*Note: Sentences in italics and marked by *** are comments from Eiana, the Renegade Raider.*

It has come to my attention that, surprisingly enough, among the Engineers of Carleton there is a male loneliness epidemic! In order to remedy this I will share with you some of my sage advice. Now I know what you're thinking, "why would I listen to this guy instead of some love counselor on the internet"? Well I'm glad you asked! The key difference between me and those guys is that I'm in a loving relationship. And, more importantly I'm one of you (and engineer) which means I know how to speak your language (\**the language of motherfucking nerds*), so here's a logically organized list to follow (\**I bet you he used a fucking checklist to ask me out!*)

Step 1: Soul searching

Now I know many of my fellow men may have troubles with this part, but I urge you to try regardless (\**If you are struggling, I know quite a few men who found themselves and empathy after a brief psychedelic experience*). I personally am a chronic overthinker and during any period of time that I am left alone with my thoughts I will overthink everything that I have ever done. I use that to my advantage by directing my thoughts towards useful things like schoolwork, but I also found myself thinking about more internal things, like how I think or what I want. What do you want, cherished reader? I'm not here to tell you what you should want, but if you're an engineer and you made it this far into an article there must be something you want from it.

Step 2: Coming to terms with yourself

Ok ok, I know how this sounds I promise I'll get to the advice you want to hear soon, I just ask that you continue to keep an open mind for a bit longer. Everyone has insecurities, I've had my fair share, no matter what you try you can never fully get rid of them, but there are things you can do to settle them down. Confidence is the key trait I'm looking to instill in you here, insecurity is the enemy of confidence so lets nip this in the bud shall we. The trial must fit the crime, for example, you'll see men in the gym all the time, sure some of them are athletes and need to keep up a certain level of strength for competition. But the majority are men who are looking to "improve" some part of their body. Now I'm not saying that all men who go to the gym are insecure about their bodies, I'm just saying it's a good way to deal with that insecurity. I'll leave you to figure out what changes to make in your lifestyle that will fittingly quiet down your insecurities. Hint: you should have figured out what improvements you want to make as part of step 1.

Step 3: Field work - gathering data

Great! You know what you want and you have the confidence to go out and do something about it. But, my lost little lamb (\**Wow you're really calling people little lamb after being a victim of a classic case of man cold*), you have not yet heard my secrets regarding speaking to the shawty of your dreams (MPS).

Well I'll let you in on a little secret, Yes, you! Do you have friends? With similar interests and beliefs to you? It should feel the same as speaking to them, the only difference being that you have a different goal in mind don't you? Well stop that! Just focus on your conversations just as you have so many times before. If you still don't feel comfortable making conversation with people I understand that too, so I'm going to have you do some homework for me (yippee)! Your job if you choose to accept it is to talk to as many new people (outside your usual group of friends) as possible in the days to come. This may seem daunting to my fellow socially anxious brothers out there, so let's go incrementally let's say 1 new friend a day (\**I friend a day is a lot of fucking people, I'm at like 1 a week if I'm lucky*), can you manage that? Good, then you'll be speaking to MPS in no time!

Step 4: Field testing

Congratulations! Now you're confident, and an expert socializer, you've got it all! Let's put it to the test, get out there and start talking to MPSs! Take your time with everyone, learn their stories, talk about interests and so on. This won't work for everyone, make sure that you are reading signals properly! This is key if they seem like they're not interested in you in that way you can veer away and move on. That's not to say that you can't have a platonic relationship with a MPS, but that's not what this article is aiming to teach now is it? Once you've found what you're looking for in someone, try to spend as much time as you can with them, follow the rules of socialization (\**or just aggressively overshare and trauma dump, worked for me*) that you've surely already figured out. Just make sure you're reading their signals properly, watch their body language, it gives a lot away!

Step 5: Dating

I still don't know how to do this part. This is left as an exercise for the reader! Solutions will be posted in my next column. Good luck (\**and godspeed soldiers!*) All that said, I do recommend giving it a shot, whether you're afraid or have troubles doing things for yourself. I can tell you with confidence that my life has completely changed for the better after having met my girlfriend. I've gone to events I never would have even imagined a year ago, my mental health has improved leaps and bounds, and I can't thank her enough for all of it. So as a last note that she won't be allowed to see once you've gotten to this stage just make sure to keep track of how lucky you are, it's easy to fall into a routine and forget what you're so lucky to have. That doesn't mean it's bad to fall into routines, it just feels so nice to remember where you came from and where you are now.

YAP SESSION WITH XAVIER

Xavier Haziza
MECH IV

Alright ladies and germs its time for a yap session. Ive got no clue what im going to talk about these are the ideas I'm working with right now: Some music stuff, Natasha, Pierre & The Great Comet of 1812, Photography, General Sentiments, and so much more. January has been an eventful month so far. I don't remember what has happened but god do I know that I experienced it. Wait gimme a second let me rip a bowl.... Ok real that's better. Catch me buying a typewriter on god fr. Need me one of those to lug around class and take notes. But I don't want to lug it around with me. Need me a pocket dimension to store things in. I think there was a rick Riordan book that had a system like that. Was it the Egyptian one? That one was fire.

Ok wait lets get back on track. Lemme talk about The Great Comet of 1812. This musical is fucking fantastic. Its based off a couple dozen pages of War and Peace. It takes place in 19th century Russia and its all about a massive love triangle. The vocals are absolutely insane. The stage production of it is super cool aswell photo below;

The stage is layedout all around the audience and the actors are singing, dancing, and running all around you. Its such a shame that this play has stopped touring for a couple years. I really wish I could of seen it. Ive been obsessed with this musical for the past 8 years if its not obvious. Its an absolute trip to listen to the first time. Its full of screaming, yelling, crying, fruity men, sassy men, powerful women, and the accordion!! You all really need to listen to this musical. Its an amazing piece of art for real for real.

OKAY NEXT TOPIC.

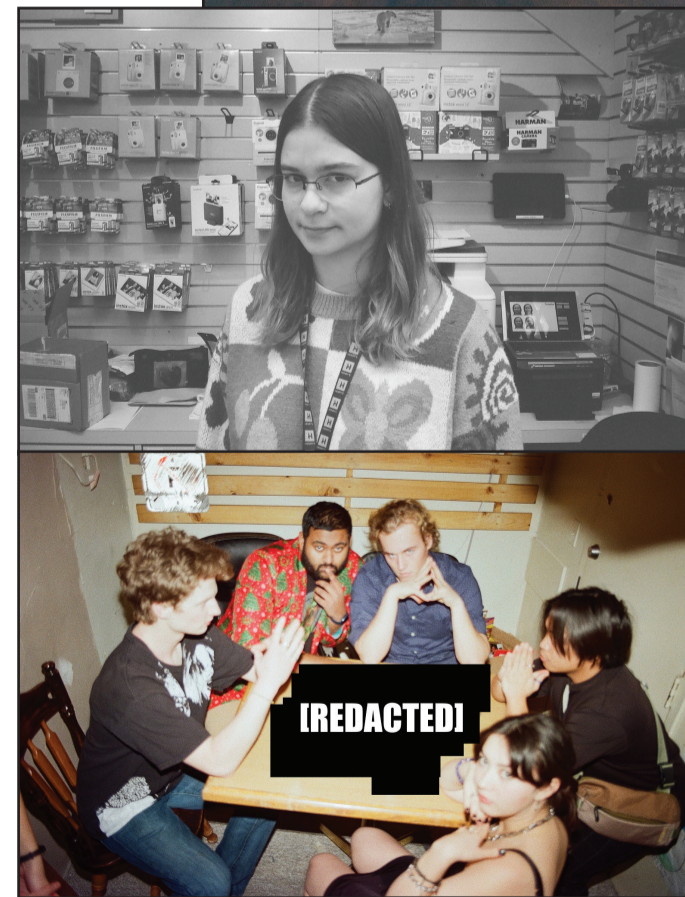

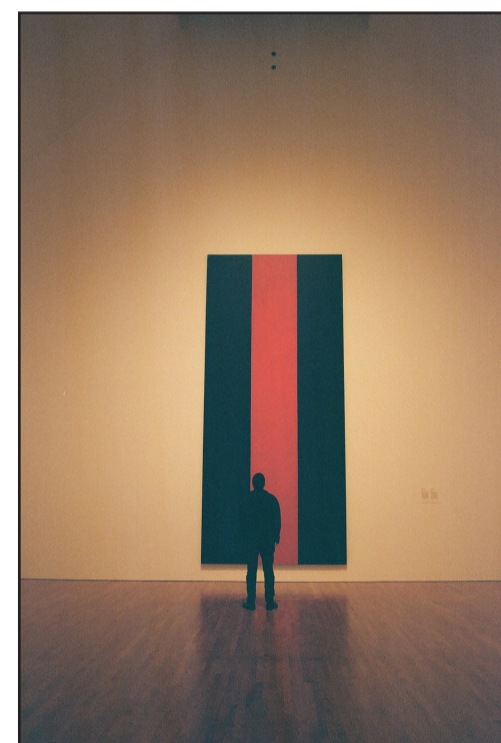

Lemme show you all some of the photos I took with my new film camera! Im shooting on a Minolta SRT 201 with a 50mm lens. Ive been shooting on Kodak 400, HP5, some Portra 800. I really want to get some rolls of Cinestill 800 and 400. For the non film nerds Cinestill is repurposed cinema film that they cut up and transform into standard 35mm. It has a really neat look to it. I also took some photos with a random rangefinder I got at an antique shop that didn't have a battery in it so some of the photos are really blurry and underexposed. Im really proud with how the photos came out, I was not expecting them to turn out as well as they did. Film photography is such a cool hobby. Ive been taking photos on my phone for a long while at this point and I finally bit the bullet and bought a camera over Christmas. The dude I bought it from was this really nice old guy who sold the camera on behalf of his sister. Its so expensive to get into though. The rolls of film are like 7-40 bucks each and like 17 each to get them developed. Really wish CSES had a film development stuff in their tech loan program. Ok on to the photos.

If you guys have any cool photo spots that I should check out lemme know. Or if I can take a photo of your cats that would be cool. Stay tuned for C-Eng Candid's. Wait that's a really good idea. Gonna do that at WGM. If you want to start a film club with me let me know that would be cool aswell. I want to take photos that we can put on the fridges in 3300, Leos, CMAS, CSES, etc. Its cute to have these physical memories of the past and I really hope that some engineers 20 years in the future can see us smile, laugh, love, suffer, and live the engineering life in C-Eng. I also want to practice taking portraits of people too. Like photography is so cool. Because you put so much effort into it and that all your photos are in one place you remember them. I can't tell you how many photos ive taken on my phone that just get lost to the ocean of memes and feet pics in my Google photos catalogue. Sorry I got distracted singing to the great comet. Just finished the album for the like 40th time and it gets me every time. Its such a fun musical to sing along to. The end is so beautiful. I forgot where I was at in my last section...But yeah photos. Get a cheap point and shoot or rangefinder, and just take photos. The more people that get back into it the cheaper the film becomes and the more likely development labs are going to open making it cheaper for everyone. The big companies have already started to restart production of film types that have been discontinued for a while. Its so fun taking photos too, just taking the time while u are running errands, walking to class, doing whatever to take pictures of things you think look nice. That's what I do basically. Ill go run an errand and take my camera with me. Ill take pictures of cars, people, the sky, buildings, trees, flowers, and whatever. Its cool being able to show people the world through your eyes. Not built for likes, or for the Instagram algorithm but to share with the ones you love and care about. I was so happy last week when I got my photos back from the lab and having all my friends crowd around me and see them on my laptop. The other week when Em got their photos back, it was cool seeing what they thought was important. Their friends. And when I see Bramble shoot salami, and their friends. When I see peter take the best candid's at parties. Just having u turn around and pose out of nowhere. When Andrew takes photos too, of his trips to Tokyo and friends at parties. When Zach shows me how he meticulously dates, notes the shutter speed, ISO, aperture, and details of each and every single shot he takes. The care he puts into each and every single photo and roll of film. Its incredible! I love it so much. You get such an amazing insight into people and what their care about and value in the world. If anyone needs help getting into it please let me know and id be more than happy to!!! Before I leave you off for the night I just want to say thank you. C-Eng has been an amazing place for the last 4 years of my life. And its so cool seeing it grown and transform in new ways.

Keep on going besties. <3

LANYARD REVIEW (VOL. 1)

Rayvel Arjoon
AERO D II

Hello C-Eng and all! Your fellow flannel enthusiast and lanyard connoisseur, here with the first edition ever of Lanyard Review! I will be reviewing the many lanyards I, and many others have. I honestly do not know how many I have, but I do know that I have a lot (greater than 30). My obsession with lanyards has made me realize that not all lanyards are created equally. Some have a beautiful theme, others do not. Some are easy to clean, while others increase my water bill. Some have a smooth, soft, feel to the touch; and others just feel like sandpaper. I will be rating the lanyards using a fully scientific and methodological approach, analyzing each and every aspect of the lanyard. Totally not objectively at all no, why would I do that??? If you'd like your lanyard to be featured in the next edition of Lanyard Review, hunt me down; I dare you. Now without further ado, let's get into it! Just as a quick disclaimer: I love all lanyards, please don't hurt me if your lanyard gets a low rating.

Universal Studios | Starting off strong! [12/10]

The absolute most perfect lanyard of all time (thanks for the lanyard Ady). The aesthetic allure and visual charm of this lanyard is truly captivating, evoking a sense of admiration and appreciation for its exquisite design and impeccable craftsmanship. This lanyard is smooth to the touch, easy to clean, it's the perfect length, and is quite strong.

It has a wonderful design and has an exceptionally strong clip. It has the emergency ejection clip that allows me to escape from whatever it gets stuck on. It's the most beautiful, lanyard I have ever seen in my entire life. It has so much grace, so much passion was clearly put into the creation of this lanyard. I would die for this lanyard. I would fight a lion, a polar bear, a shark, and you, in an active volcano, while on top of the McDonald Douglas CF-18 Hornet multirole twin engine fighter aircraft, over this lanyard.

CMAS Remove Before Flight | Aero Deez Nutz [5.69/10]

I'm sorry CMAS, but I'm a little disappointed with your lanyard :( . The only redeeming factor of this lanyard is that it makes me feel more aero. The remove before flight is nice, but the lanyard is lacking a personality. It's not very long (its personality does not make up for it). It has one static colour and it a little funky. My biggest gripe with how the lanyard is designed... THE DESIGN IS ON ONLY ONE SIDE OF THE LANYARD!!! If the lanyard is oriented a certain way, whatever personality it had (not like it had much to begin with) is gone! You can only see the colour of the lanyard. The designs are not visible at all. Shameful. War crimes were committed with the design of this lanyard.

I-Triple-Lanyards | Oh right... these don't exist... [?/10]

Why??? Where are they???? I WANT THEM!!!!!!

Carleton Red | The Original [4.69/10]

The one lanyard that started the quest for them all... It's quite basic. The original lanyard almost everyone gets when they get their campus card, so it's not very uncommon to see around. It's got a decent length, and it doesn't commit a war crime like the CMAS lanyard not having a design all over the entire lanyard. It's a nice length and it's not really anything special. It does have an ejection clip which is good. It doesn't have a very special or nice feel to the touch. It's just meh. It is also a pain to clean, stains do not get out of this 'thing'. It's quite fuzzy and weak at the ends of the lanyard where it's stitched.

Carleton Black & White | The Better Carleton Red, Without the Red [5/10]

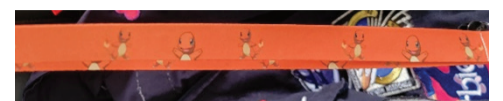

It's literally the red Carleton basic lanyard, but with enhancements. It's easier to clean and has a perfect length. It's got a better feel and has the ejection clip thing. It also just overall looks nicer. It is just as strong and can hold itself well. I wouldn't be surprised if this lanyard could hold up the CF-18 hornet multirole, twin engine, multipurpose, military fighter jet... or your mom. Also, I lost this lanyard so please please please can I have one if you have one?? :(

Carleton Red & Black | The Ultimate Crossover Event [7/10]

BACKPACK LANYARD! I put this sucker on my backpack because it's got a cool funky clip. It's pretty stiff and got the design all over it. It's so LONG too! It cleans up pretty nice for a lanyard that's exposed to the harsh outside elements. 9/10 lanyard wearers recommend.

Pokémon Pikachu/Charmander | Gotta Catch 'em all! [7/10]

I WANNA BE,
THE VERY BEST,
LIKE NO ONE EVER WASSSSS

CSES Engineering | I wanna lick dat gong [6/10]

Why is the design not all over the lanyard??? Disgraceful. Once again, a war crime was committed. It is literally just a blank white lanyard on the other side. It cleans up pretty good as a white lanyard which is always a good note. It's a nice lanyard though. Feels nice to touch, as it's nice and smooth. I enjoy the design; just not anything special. Its decently long and got some swagger. Very professional lanyard.

Whales | WHALES [7/10]

WHALES!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Need I say more?

Planets | SPAAAAAAACE [8/10]

Planets? Perchance. Space? Perchance. Swaggyness? Perchance. Smooth feel? Perchance. Good length? Perchance. Excluding Pluto because it's not a planet; just a rock floating in space trying to deceive all of humankind but fails to do so because it will never be good enough to obtain planet status? Yes.

Vape Lanyard | Nicotine bad [1/10]

A man with a vape showed me this (Matthew). Do not vape. Vape bad. Instead, buy more lanyards. In fact, you should give me some lanyards.

HOW TO FIND LOVE IN THE ANIMAL KINGDOM

Mya Binns
BIOL V

Howdy folks, as your local biology major, I've taken a lot of classes about animals. From an evolutionary perspective, an organism's only purpose is to reproduce and pass on their DNA. However, inter- and intra-species competition makes it so animals have to compete for mating rights, so evolution has had to get very creative with how one attracts a mate. Since you bitchless engineers have only recently discovered showering, I figured we should take a look at some of our distant relatives to see how they attract a mate in hopes that their methods may work out for you :)

First off, let's define some terms. You've probably heard of the phrase "survival of the fittest" before and assume that only the most physically fit and alpha of animals survive. This view is incorrect from a biological perspective. Biological fitness is defined as an organism's ability to reproduce and pass on their genes. So a fit individual may not be the most physically fit, but they possess desirable or high-quality traits that are optimal in attracting a mate. With that out of the way, let's jump in!

Birds of Paradise

You've probably seen these prettily plumed Passerines passionately parade their pristine plumages and pondered "why they look like that?". Well the simplest answer is that they have very few natural predators and an abundance of food in their environment, so evolution was able to invest in some neat feathers. What's the plumage for? Getting bitches. Males will perform elaborate dances/courtship displays, shaking their feathers and flashing bright colours to attract a female. The flashy colours are a marker of quality males with access to better food supplies will develop brighter coloured feathers. The duration and intensity of the courting dance is an indicator of the male's physical characteristics as well as the male's calls during the dance. Essentially, the more resources a male can put towards exaggerated traits and mating rituals, the more success they will have. These signals can't easily be faked without incurring significant costs to the faker, so they're also seen as "honest signals". So to attract a mate like a bird of paradise, all you need is a bunch of colourful feathers, an elaborate interpretive dance, and no sense of shame.

Frogs

Oh boy, time for everyone's favourite amphibious Anurans! As the most diverse group of amphibians out there, our funny froggy friends have gotten pretty funky with the way they flex their fecundity. No two frog species take the same approach to mating and unfortunately I don't have time to cover the almost 7000 species of frogs, so let's look at the general approach. The first step in getting bitches is finding bitches. How do you find bitches when you're a tiny frog in a big pond? Easy, you let them come to you. In most species, males will loudly call from a possible breeding site. Each species has a distinct call and females are able to recognize the call of their own species. In the Wrinkled Toadlet (Uperoleia rugosa), heavier males with deeper-pitched calls are deemed the most attractive by females. Once a female has found a male, she'll often evaluate the male's vocal sac. Males inflate their vocal sacs to amplify their mating call, so the shape and size can tell a female about a male's fitness. What if you have no vocal sac? If you're the Goliath frog, you produce a whistling sound to attract a female. I bet you're asking if these calls are honest signals and don't you worry they are! The significant cost incurred by the male in the situation is that vocal signals can attract predators. Sitting for long periods of time trying to attract a mate expends energy and leaves them vulnerable to predators. Therefore, the risks associated with the signal ensures its honesty.

So to attract a mate like a frog, all you need is a vocal sac, some sweet tunes, and a log to sit on.

Mammals

Time for my favourite Class because it's the one I'm in! Let's talk about mammals! There are around 6400 extant species of mammals that have been divided into 29 orders. Again, we don't have the time or space to cover everything so let's go over the broad strokes.

The most common form of attraction used by mammals is pheromones. A pheromone is a secreted or excreted chemical factor that triggers a social response. They act like hormones outside of the body, affecting the behaviour of the receiving individual(s). Female pheromones tend to indicate the availability of the female for breeding, Male pheromones tend to convey information about their species and genotype. Humans also release pheromones, but their exact function and influence is highly debated. In a lot of animals, urine is the main source of pheromones. For example, male moose will dig pits in the ground called wallows, fill them with their urine, and rub the muddy mixture onto themselves. How appealing! That's not me exaggerating, female moose have been known to fight each other over wallows.

Plenty of animals fight for mating rights too. Horned animals will use said horns to fight each other and potentially kill their rival. Honestly a lot of mammal courtship is based on strength so I don't blame people for misusing "survival of the fittest" because it's kinda true for mammals. Bringing things back to the risks associated with these, it's pretty obvious; injury and/or death! So the intense potential consequences of these mating displays keeps them honest.

So all you need to do to attract a mate like a true mammal is get some good perfume/cologne, piss in the dirt, and fight your competitors to the death!

Fish

Darling, it's better down where it's wetter so let's get fishy with it!

Continued on page 10...

As seen on page 9...

As with any species, fish have unique reproductive organs and mating techniques which are adapted to their environment and specialised to each species. The classic pattern is of male and female fish gathering at spawning grounds, females lay their eggs directly into the water or settlement, and males release their sperm to fertilise the eggs. There isn't much sexual selection at play here as these large populations just sorta aim to make as many offspring as possible in hopes that some survive. Not all species act like this though.

Japanese puffer fish (within the genus Takifugu) create beautiful and elaborate underwater artwork to attract the attention of a female.

It consists of a pattern of circles on the seabed, similar to crop circles. Males draw this pattern with their fins, pushing sand away, and working relentlessly for around a week. The perfectly geometric pattern measures around 2 metres in diameter and can have complex patterns composed of lines, valleys, and ridges. Some even add shells or coloured rocks to add to their art.

The drummer fish (Aplodinotus grunniens) produces grunting and rumbling sounds to attract a mate. Seahorses perform long dances which include caresses, hugs, and colour changes. These dances can last up to 8 hours and are used to strengthen their bond. Anglerfish is where shit gets really weird! Males secrete a pheromone and females will aid their search by flashing their lure. Once a male finds a suitable mate, he bites into her belly and latches on until his body fuses with hers. Their skin and blood vessels join together which allows the male to take all the nutrients he needs from his mate. Body parts such as eyes, fins, and some internal organs atrophy, degenerate, and wither away. In exchange for providing nutrients, the male provides the female with sperm whenever she's ready to reproduce.

So to get a mate like a fish, all you need to do is participate in some orgies, create beautiful art, and become so clingy you become parasitic!

Conclusion

There is no conclusion, go get some bitches.

ELECTROLYSIS

THE ONLY LOVE YOU'LL EVER NEED

Cynthia Cairns
AERO III

Have you ever thought to yourself "Man, oh man, I want to be held down and have pain inflicted on me this February, but I have no rizz whatsoever"? Or have ever wanted to get rid of some of your hair or whatever, idk. Then look no further my friend, for I found the solution for you. Electrolysis. A slow painful method of removing thick hair from anywhere on your body. Sorry thin haired folk, you'll have to find people to remove your hair elsewhere.

Electrolysis is the process of a certified professional jabbing you with a needle to position its tip directly on the follicle of the hair. Before beginning, the electrologist will ensure that their needle they'll be using on you is fresh from the packaging to ensure that disease isn't being spread. It's vey hot watching them take it out, them letting you know that your safe with them no matter what. The needle is not penetrating through all the layers of the skin in most of the time, unless you have very thick skin, or your hair follicle is buried deep. Nothing is being injected through the needle so it is able to enter the skin very easily to the point where you will not be able to feel it, but do not think for a moment that it won't hurt. Once correctly positioned, an electric current is sent through the needle and rise the follicle, in order to never allow hair to grow in that spot ever again. And boy howdy does it hurt like a bitch. And they keep going fast, shocking more and more hairs. The more hairs stemming from the follicle, the more its going to hurt like hell when they pulse their electricity inside you. I crave that rush everyday. It's sometimes the only think that gets me out of bed in the morning. The idea of true suffering to achieve the societal ideal of attractiveness. Truly, beauty is pain, And I'm her to pay top dollar in order for me to feel like absolute garbage, and essentially be a burn victim for a day who isn't allowed to show the affected area in directly sunlight, lest you want the burn to become worst and the pain to be even worse. Sunlight increases the burn area, risk of infection, and the how long it lasts. The best way to prevent everything is to hide in a room with the blinds closed, rub aloe vera on your skin, and think about the next time you get to experience the sweet bliss of the needle.

Now this might have you thinking that this is just painful, and nothing will come from this at all. Laser is probably just as effective and cheaper too. To that I say; stop being stupid, this is therapy for me (Like actually do whatever you want tho, I couldn't care less). I pay over 100$ CAD per session and I get to bitch to neurodivergent people about life, because they're the only ones who could hyper fixate on hair for so long, and then they bitch about their lives. It's like going for a more precise haircut where you feel the hair getting removed. And good lord, the pinning is real. Because it's so painful, you have to expect I'm going to jerk and fidget after each shock, not ideal when there's a needle inside you. So, they have to hold you down HARD. And I feel so loved and safe and want to go back and give them even more money so I can feel the pain again and be told that I'm doing so well taking even more shocks and going even longer than last session. They make me feel so accomplished in myself. It's prostitution but psychological harming me. So, prostitution, with the added benefit of being hairless.

Unfortunately, the biggest downside is the cost as previous mentioned. I can barley make an hour, which is a good amount of time to make any sort of progress on getting my hair removed, meaning I have to buy a lot of numbing cream to keep going that long. This is on top of the initial payment for the session and truly laser is much more cost effective, or even just shaving. Ideally I would be allowed to have hair wherever I want, but societal expectations have given me the impression that I need to remain without flaw, including any hair on my body. Sad face.

WHY IS PUBLIC TRANSIT IN OTTAWA SO BAD?

The history and reasons as to why

Bramble "The Saltler"
Bramble
COGSCI III

Greetings fellow public transit enthusiasts. Not a day goes by where I don't hear someone complaining about OC Transpo. Well, today I am going to do a deep (kind of) dive (this is actually more of a rant because I have no concept of time management <3 sorry em) into why Ottawa public transit sucks so bad, and who you can blame for it!

JIM WATSON

Jim Watson was the 56th mayor of Ottawa. He was in office from 1997-2000, and unfortunately again from 2010-2022, where he made his most prominent fuck ups. Most notable being the O-Train Line 1. Oh man oh boy when I see that plaque at Hurdman. Thanks Jimmy for the piece of shit train that nobody fucking wants. Why can't we have a proper metro or something, Jesus Christ just another line 2 sort of line even. But no. Warm weather suited trains. They'll work because the company is from Europe :3 We are going to make a train specifically for Ottawa that is so so bad at its job :3 Not to mention the fact that the actual opening of the train was delayed. I would personally love it if Ottawa set realistic deadlines for their construction goals so we are not consistently disappointed but oh boy do they ever love to over-promise and under-deliver. That should be the OC-Transpo slogan.

MARK SUTCLIFFE

Oh lord don't even get me started on this asshole. We could have had Catherine McKenney. I find it so funny that now the people who voted for this idiot are starting to regret it (Lansdowne 2.0?????? wtf is this fuckwit thinking) and have decided that he's left wing just because they don't like him. Anyway. Fun Fact: Mark Sutcliffe took one year of political science at Carleton before dropping out and working for a radio station. This is the delusional level of confidence held by Sprout students. He didn't even finish his degree (in fact, he barely even started it), and here he is!! Deciding that he is fit to run a city!! And people actually voted for this clown!! And I will say this, if you voted for him, I'm giving you a free membership to the clown club. Clown. Back to the meat of the article. I'm mad about the state of public transit in this city and right now it's this asshole's fault. He has clearly proven time and time again that he does not give a shit what people want, unless you live in Kanata or something (this is a Kanata hate article btw). Bitch is obsessed with cops and cars and a stadium that never gets filled up anyway. #onemorelane. If i ever see this mf in person someones gonna have to restrain me because I'm gonna go apeshit. If you have complaints feel free to email him at mark.sutcliffe@ottawa.ca

RENEE AMILCAR

General manager of OTranspo Currently At The Moment. On the Sunshine List. Need I elaborate more. At least she actually takes the train tho. Be confident in what you are running! Even if it is dangerous and unsafe!!!!

AMALGAMATION OF THE REGIONAL MUNICIPALITY OF OTTAWA CARLETON

Just so y'all are aware, there are some old fucks who are (technically) older than amalgamated Ottawa. There used to be Ottawa, and the Regional Municipality of Ottawa Carleton, which was amalgamated in 2001. This is because Ottawa is the city of suburban sprawl and loves to fuckibng ruin my life. Now I'm no expert but typically when there is less area in a city it makes it a lot easier to run public transit. And naturally, a lot of the amalgamated regions are super suburban (cough cough. Kanata) and suburban dwellers are allergic to anything that's not car centric infrastructure. So of course, when you amalgamate them into your city, more people are gonna vote for car fuckers. I'm gonna be real with you. I don't know who's idea this was but I think we should kick Kanata out at least.

LARRY O'BRIEN

One thing in common with all the mayors here is that they all made the unrealistic promise of "I will make taxes not as expensive" and fumble the bag so hard. There was supposed to be an O-Train expansion long before Line-1 that Larry was like "hmm lemme think. ok maybe sure lets draft some plans. but only because we might get sued if we don't go ahead with this. actually, go fuck yourself." I literally just read this guy's wikipedia article because I was 9 when his term ended so I genuinely don't remember anything about him, but I think we need to stop hiring "business people" for mayors if we want actual progress.

Moral of the story is that the city of Ottawa has fumbled the bag in terms of who the mayor is. We could have had decent public transit right now but instead we are getting more transit cuts and routes that really fucking suck for like anyone living on the south/southwest side of campus (adios, 111 carleton). Not to be that bitch but please email your city councillor about every single thing that inconveniences you about the city, because the more people who are vocal about it, the more they might actually be inclined to do something about it. Anyway that's all I have to say, these mfs are ruining my life rn, and I wish we had Catherine McKenney as the mayor right now.

Ontario Sunshine List

<https://www.ontariosunshinelist.com> › renee-amilcar

Renée Amilcar Salary at City of Ottawa

Salary history for Renée Amilcar, General Manager, Transit Services Department at City of Ottawa from Ontario's sunshine list.

Over Peack

POST ALGIA WAREHOUSE
Ottawa's New Collectibles & Antiques Shop

mayfair theatre
since 1932

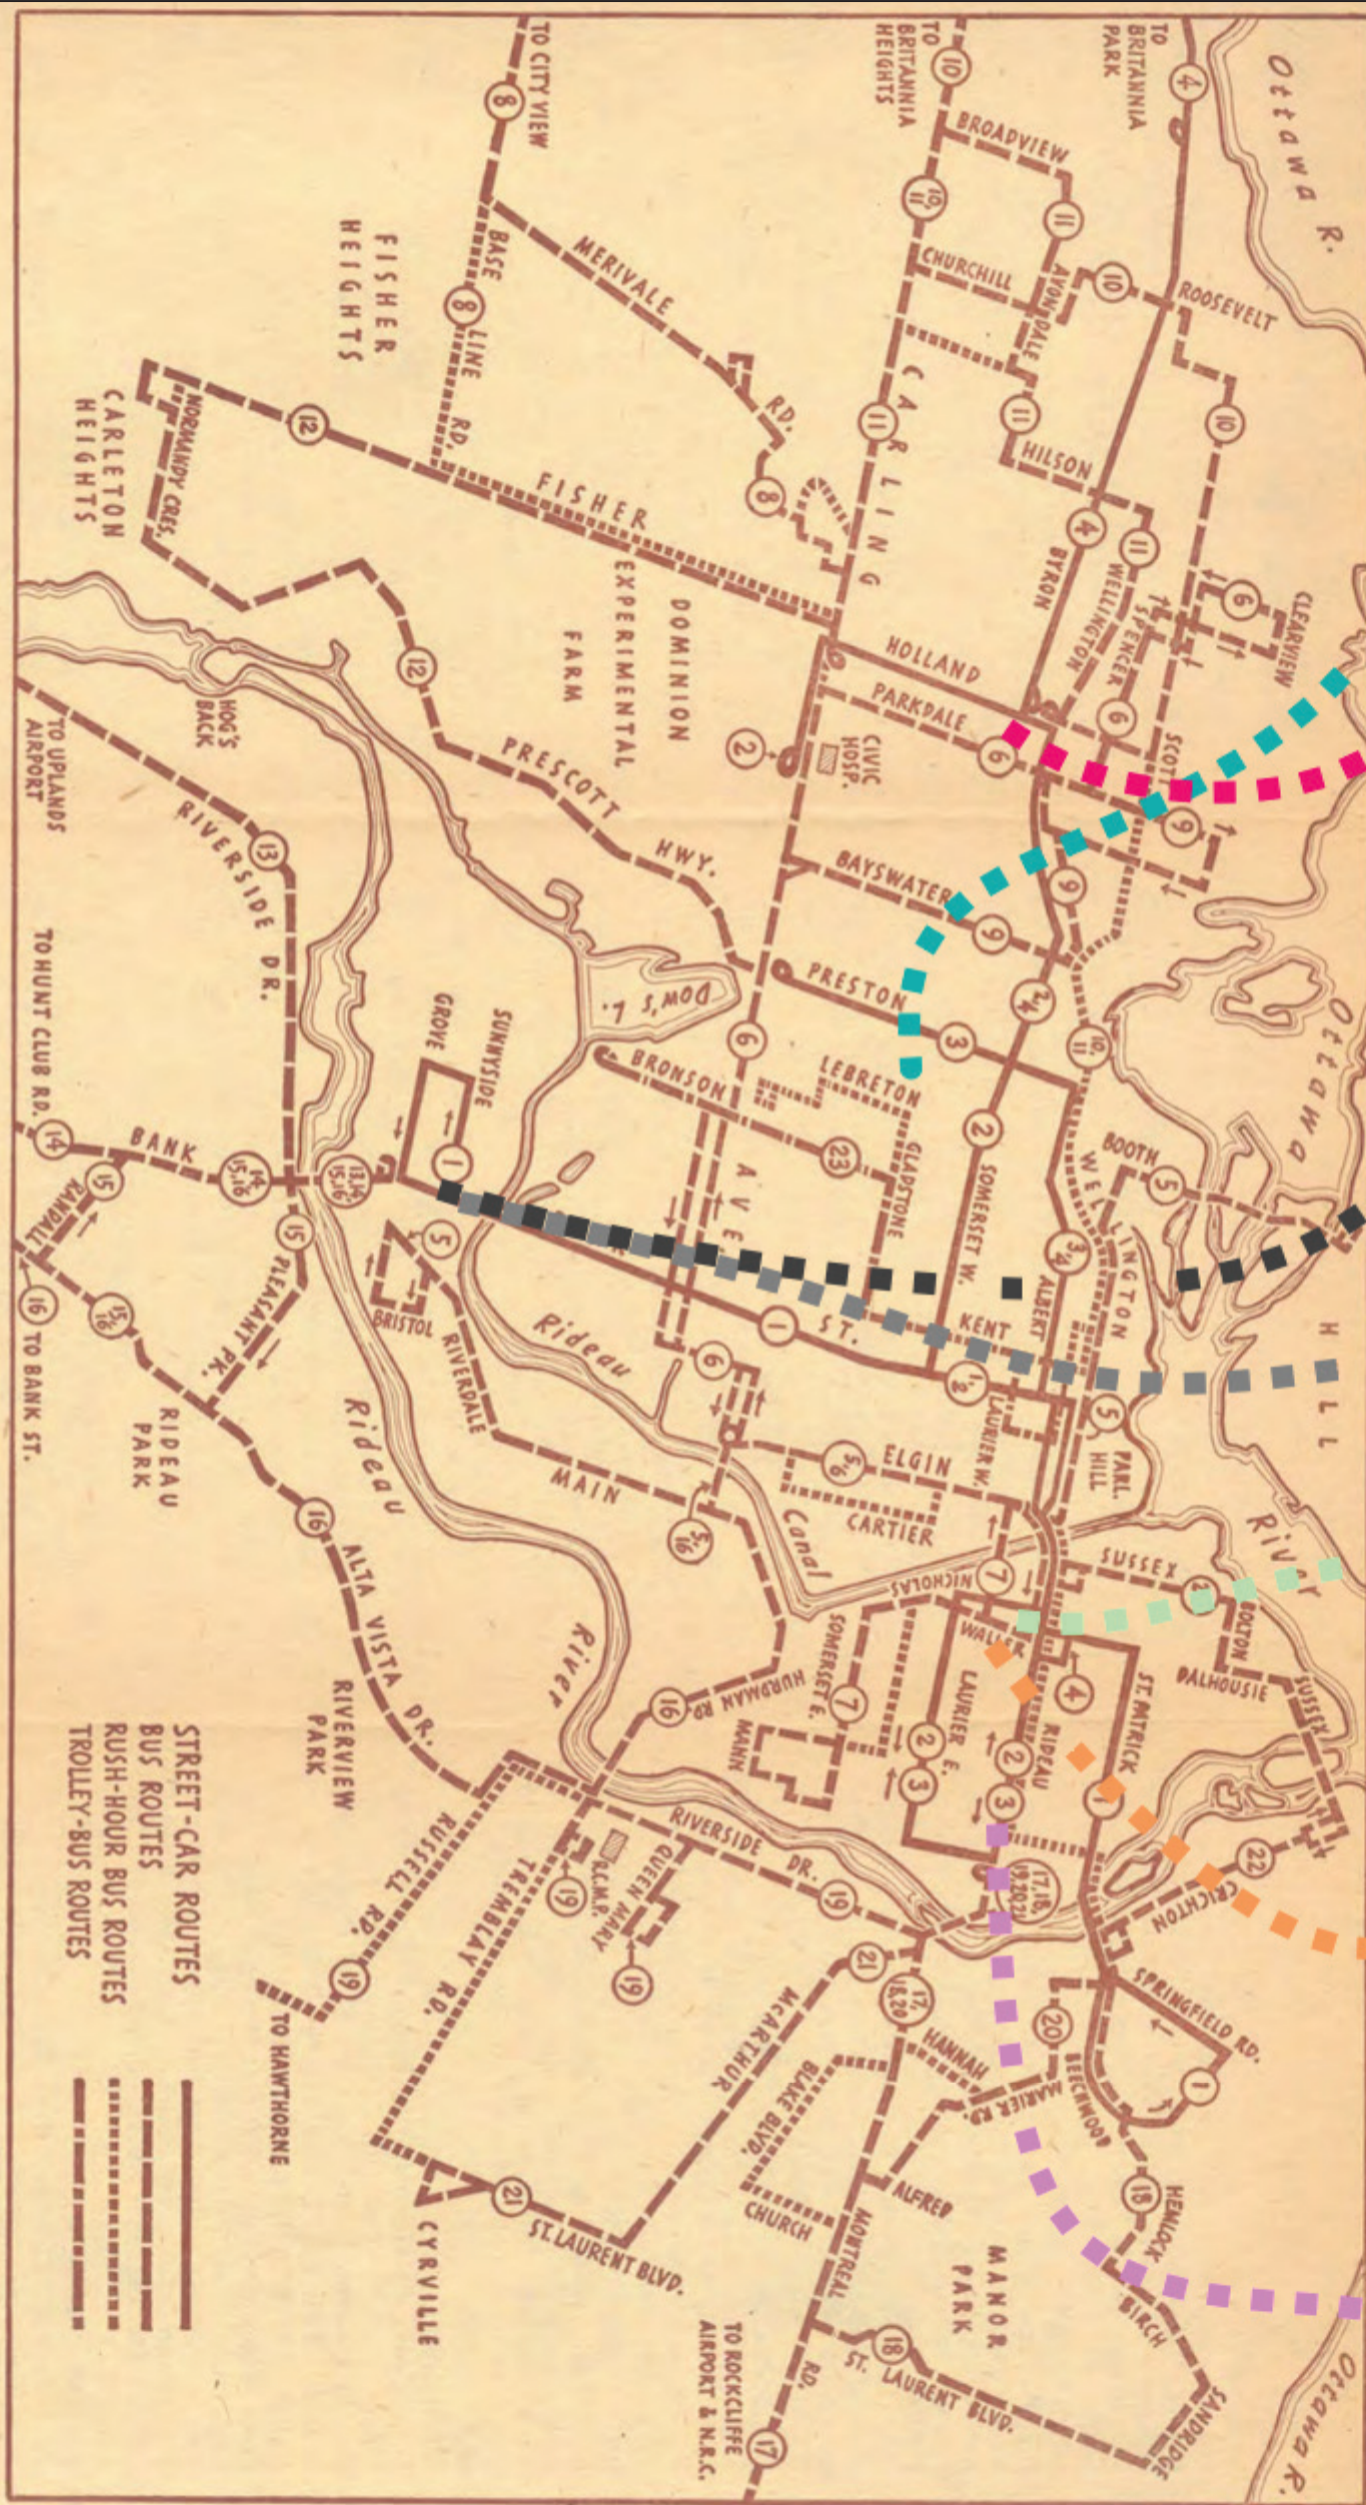

S A W

BYTOWNE
C I N E M A

OTC Rider December 31, 1954 OTC Rider December 31, 1954 OTC Rider December 31, 1954

Your OTC Serves 44 Square Miles with 23 Streetcar and Bus Lines

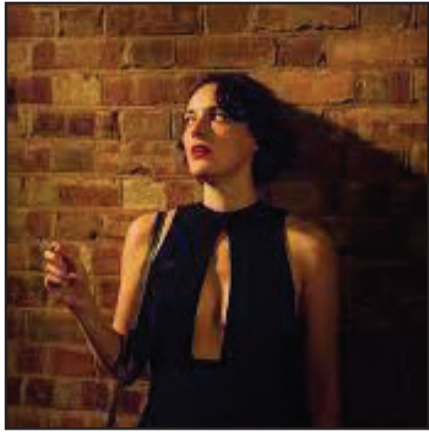

STREET-CAR ROUTES
BUS ROUTES
RUSH-HOUR BUS ROUTES
TROLLEY-BUS ROUTES

For Descriptions of Routes Compare Numbers with Those on Reverse Side

Printed Timetables Are Available at our Sparks Street Office for Lines 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21

GET A GRIP AND DON'T DATE SHITTY PEOPLE

Eliana "Gavrilo Princip" Schartner
SYSC this dick III

When I was younger, my parents would often buy me books about dating, life and relationships; specifically how to navigate modern dating as a woman of the lord. Modesty, sexual purity and my spiritual involvement took precedence over less important things, such as my mental health (it wasn't until I started getting tattoos that my parents offered me therapy with the caveat that it had to be through a christian therapy service). I can distinctly remember one book I had that listed pros and cons to look for in the man you were considering dating, with one of the cons being "being emotional". I suppose that list may work for you if your type is a self-proclaimed "alpha male provider" but anyone who knows me knows that that is definitely not my type. I spent much of my younger teenage years looking for a godly man that my parents would approve of, however in my experience most of the guys who attended my church were genuinely terrible people*. There was also the whole problem of discovering that I was not straight in a household where my parents were supporters of conversion therapy, but that's a whole other can of worms. Anyways, the point I'm trying to get to here is that the ideals I was raised with to have for a partner are definitely not the ones I have now, nor should they be in my opinion. But, contrary to popular belief that I'm terrible at choosing partners (I've recently been thoroughly congratulated on finding a man that is decent), I'm pretty good at spotting green and red flags in partners and lucky for you ducks I'm gonna share some with y'all today.**

RED FLAGS

1 Unable to Maintain Friendships

Making friends is really hard sometimes. But if everyone you have ever been friends with hates you now that may be a you problem. Not a me problem. Introversion isn't a red flag, but I would recommend against entertaining someone who is generally disliked by everyone who knows them. Speaking from experience, if you introduce them to your friends, it will be super embarrassing for you when they keep trying to fuck them. Even more embarrassing when they all say no.

2 Their #1 Priority is Sex

This is honestly my biggest red flag in any potential partner. Maybe it's because my mom makes me watch a sermon on waiting for marriage every time I go home or because my first boyfriend dated me because he "liked having unlimited access to sex" but it's honestly such an ick. Literally get a grip like my personality should be all you need.

3 Has a Thing for Feet

Honestly not really a red flag but it's a little bit weird. I'd let it slide if they're in electrical engineering though, I think it comes with the territory.

4 Stinky

Fun fact: you can take more than one shower a week, it's actually encouraged.

GREEN FLAGS

1 Has Goals in Life

My parents are thrilled that I'm finally dating someone who is in engineering. Or just post-secondary in general. Or just has a plan that doesn't revolve around the fact that I will be making engineer money in the future. This economy is shit and I can't financially support me, my sweet treat addiction and another human.

2 Understands the Importance of Sweet Treats

This is a personal thing, but if my partner tries to stop me from getting a sweet treat (any item with price ranging from $1 - $200) they ain't gonna be my partner for long. Even greener flag is when they get you a sweet treat. That's the way to my heart.

3 Ignores your Red Flags

There have been many times where MY friends have warned someone I was seeing against me. I swear I'm really not that bad and honestly that kinda hurted my feelings. Get you a partner who will not heed their warnings (or yours). Somehow I managed to get a healthy relationship after telling him "I'm not in my relationship arc" in response to being asked on a date (that was obviously a lie).

4 Full of Life and Whimsy

I may just be a hater but I do not like grumpy people. Don't date someone who just grumps around all the time, you need someone with some spirit. Why would I wanna date someone who seems to think their job is to bring my mood down?

bit different. Maybe it's just because I'm used to dating people with raging substance abuse issues.

* That's not to say all Christians suck, I have also met some awesome people at church who embody the ideal of "love thy neighbour" and don't weaponize their religion against groups they deem "immoral".

** Of course, as per usual, all advice is based on personal experience

HONOURABLE MENTIONS: BEIGE FLAGS

1 Thinks is Okay to Wear a Salt and Pepper Grey Tracksuit

Pack it up Roots. It's not necessarily a bad thing per se but I think it looks silly.

2 Makes you Watch True Crime Interrogation Videos Every Night

Honestly, a green flag in my opinion but some beg to differ. Haters. I honestly don't think I can fall asleep without them.

3 Doesn't Smoke Weed

Good for you but couldn't be me. It's not weird or not to, whatever floats your boat, but for someone who smokes daily, it is definitely a

THE IRON PEOPLE

IRON GIANT AKA IRON LADDER

Kevin "Bottom Rung" Fernando - AERO A III

Hailing from
Belleville, Ontario

You have been given an ancient Greek style quest to retrieve a curve for your exam, what 2 items do you bring with you on your journey?

0% plain greek yogurt, ladder

What lofty and ambitious goals are you setting for your self next year?

pull off the greatest #KevinFrosh ever known to the peoples of CEng.

What space would you add to campus for maximum cozy factor to work in?

Sensory deprivation chambers

What piece of art do you think about alot and speaks to you on a deeply personal level?

I think about the carrot statue outside St Patrick's building on a daily basis. I've been told its actually called wings but let's be real, it's definitely a carrot.

Anything you'd like to say to the readers?

Before you judge me try walking a mile in my shoes so you can see how little i care and how good it feels to be a mile away from you. If you can't laugh at yourself that's okay, because the rest of us can laugh at you instead.

Tell us about your tales of C-Eng involvement!

Co-Founder of Gong Committee

Co-Jr Ladder

Co-Jr WiE Chair (Thank you Katey and your Halloween heist)

Engfrosh 2024 - Spirit

C-Eng-C Sr Design Second Place Finalist

IRON BITCH AKA IRON SLAG

Aiko Derry - BAS C&S III

Hailing from
Toronto, Ontario

You have been given an ancient Greek style quest to retrieve a curve for your exam, what 2 items do you bring with you on your journey?

Knobel because she knows everything about everyone... and she drives the knobussywagon, and my retainer.

What lofty and ambitious goals are you setting for your self next year?

Hopefully not flunk out of coop so I don't have to graduate yet

What space would you add to campus for maximum cozy factor to work in?

Leo's lounge storage room part 2: electric boogaloo, but it's just CMAS. We're tearing down the wall.

What piece of art do you think about alot and speaks to you on a deeply personal level?

Aidan Karst Fozzie Bear, circa summer 2023

Anything you'd like to say to the readers?

Tell us about your tales of C-Eng involvement!

Leo's Design Manager

CENG Musical Vocal Director

Iron Times Spread & Graphic Design

& Design VP PUBS

The Ladder Blast

CSES Enjoyer

G-ENG SPEAKS

We asked and you answered!

- 1. We're bringing back throwing rotten fruits at famous people we don't like, who are you putting in the gallows first?

i know i will get FLAMED for this... ed cyr
shashi gowda

Leonardo davinci, he gotta stop dating people under 25
Eliana "THE ALPHA" Schartner

Probably pretty much any world leader at this point, that seems enjoyable.
Erika "Soupcerer" Langner

*If we can get one person to rep the whole country of Fr*nce I will bust out the PvZ watermelon launcher plant*
Matthé Bekkers

Ryan Seacrest. I don't believe he is a real person and a pomelo to the face would help me find peace.
Jaime Kfourri

Margaret Thatcher's dug-up lifeless body
Chris Meiling

lets pull Walt Disney's cryo pod out of the basement they're keeping it in Arlana "Scotiabaked" Davis

Tina Fey, that's what you get for ruining the mean girls musical movie adaptation you asshole.
Aiko Derry

if your advocacy is not intersectional, im launching a tomato at you with a particle accelerator. looking at you, taylor swift!
zahira "the leafy lady" bakr

carmy from the bear covered in fruity liquid 🍓🍓🍓
Jaime Sexton

taylor swift sorry guys
Bramble "The Saltler" Bramble

Ru Paul
Karl Mech
- 2. Whats your favourite niche music sub genre?

Bisexual road trip through the mountains in my Subaru Forester
Shanna Peper

post-post-neo-indie-alt-jazz fusion
Matthé Bekkers

spotify has been throwing a lot of "mallgoth" at me idk
Bramble "The Saltler" Bramble

The pre-exam scream on repeat
Caroline Twelves

Engineering-core. It's like midwestern emo except there's a bagpipe and a sousaphone.
Chris Meiling

cowboy sex
Jaime Sexton

Minecraft Music
James Classen

"emo kid who has unrestricted internet access in 2014" (it's nightcore)
shashi gowda

Fortnite parodies
Eliana "THE ALPHA" Schartner

grunge complextro, yes this is real and yes I listen to it
Arlana "Scotiabaked" Davis

Québécois baroque pop
Jules Wong

My brother is obsessed with pirate metal and it's honestly pretty good
Erika "Soupcerer" Langner

Visigothic anti-roman paganesque tunnel chanting
Jaime Kfourri

Hat music
Quentin "Market Value" Alexander

Songs that have been Rupaul's drag race lip sync tracks
Aiko Derry

*I FUCKING LOVE SHOEGAZE
GOD I LOVE SHOEGAZE
YEAHHH BABYYYY*
Karl Mech
- 3. What would you commission a tiktok artist to make out of cake for a special event?

Kassidy Hammond
Cynthia Cairns

A life size statue of Kassidy Hammond
Shanna Peper

life sized photo realistic cake of alexander jain
Jaime Sexton

The Gong
Kass "Clinton" Hammond

A cake gong would be pretty funny to see rung
Erika "Soupcerer" Langner

The gong at WGM so I can (legally) lick it ;)
Charlie "Boogie" Brockmann

The Gong. So I can finally lick it
Quentin "Market Value" Alexander

a real job
Matthé Bekkers

life sized replica's of committee, this is specifically for FSKIV
Arlana "Scotiabaked" Davis

cake guillotine. let them eat cake
zahira "the leafy lady" bakr

A massive fish for the CSES Fish Fry happening February 30th!
Chris Meiling

A [REDACTED] for [REDACTED] FAKE EVENT THAT IS NOT HAPPENING]
Aiko Derry

FEETIES
Eliana "THE ALPHA" Schartner

Lifesized CMAS couch
Jules Wong

Fuck tiktok i don't watch that shit
James Classen
- 4. Whos your lucky valentine? C O U P L E S BE GONE!

what does this mean god im so lonely
Jaime Sexton

your mother
Bramble "The Saltler" Bramble

My good friend Jack Daniel's
James Classen

The pedestrian who side-eyed me after I slightly slid my van into a snowbank that contained a mailbox and very much did not hit the mailbox in any way... our souls are forever connected
Jules Wong

Adam MacMaster. Come to me.
Matthé Bekkers

Larry the lobster
Charlie "Boogie" Brockmann

Swarles my beloved 🥰 jk obviously my talented, brilliant, incredible, amazing, show stopping, spectacular, never the same, totally unique, completely not ever been done before, unafraid to reference or not reference, put it in a blender, shit on it, vomit on it, eat it, give birth to it, wife Knobel 🍷
Aiko Derry

Carter
Karl Mech

Nadiya 🥰
Kass "Clinton" Hammond

the holy spirit because I always be keeping room for him
Eliana "THE ALPHA" Schartner

soju <3 (i promise i have healthy drinking habits)
shashi gowda

the ASME Nuclear Power Plant Components Division I Subsection ND 1974 Edition
Arlana "Scotiabaked" Davis

The Ghost of Mackenzie once jerked me off in the SCESoc office, so it's gotta be him.
Chris Meiling
- 5. A brand new colour of your choice is being added to the Offical Registry™, whats it called?

tomato soup red
Erika "Soupcerer" Langner

Lahara in my flightsuit blue
Charlie "Boogie" Brockmann

please please release the shrimp colours
Matthé Bekkers

Vomit (we all know that colour well)
James Classen

Basement throne toilet blue
Aiko Derry

A combination of a deep red and a rich brown, called "my piss".
Chris Meiling

Goldie Gong
Kass "Clinton" Hammond

Cum Green
Karl Mech

PISSPISSPISS (its a spectrum of colours ranging from light yellow to green)
Eliana "THE ALPHA" Schartner

you ever microwaved a monster into a warm cider-esque drink before? that zahira "the leafy lady" bakr

A series of 4 colours: "Committee Blues"
Jaime Kfourri

🐱
Jaime Sexton

TAROT READINGS

with Maria "Dumb Fuck" Velikanova

CRIM III

Another issue, another reading!!! We're back with this issue's question and response, which is:

"Hi maria im hopefully starting testosterone soon. am i cursed (blessed?) to become a mindless himbo"

Before delving into your reading. I'd like to say congratulations!! I understand this is a pretty big step, thank you for trusting us with this information :)

Now, onto the reading itself, the deck you selected was The Daemon Tarot Deck. Let's see what the Daemons have to say about this great question!!

Fundamental Stuff - Who and What

First Card - You

The card that represents you is the demon Ribesal. The divination for this card is "Beware of excluding emotions for the pursuit of logic or genius; take care not to invest so much in learning as to become cruel and unfeeling".

Second Card - Defense

The card that represents your defense is the demon Amon. The divination for this card is "focus on repairing relationships that have drifted apart through differences, finding common ground".

Third Card - Heart of Situation

The card that represents you is the demon Stolas. The divination for this card is "Focus on accurate appraisal and the search for true worth".

Fourth Card - Offense

The card that represents you is the demon Caacrinolaas. The divination for this card is "Focus on learning the secrets of others, but beware of using that knowledge to harm others".

Fifth Card - Where it's Going

The card that represents you is the demon Flaga. The divination for this card is "Focus on clearing away any debris, physical or mental obstructions".

The Interpretation

There's a lot of different things from each card, but the general overall vibe I'm getting is that you're not going to become a himbo, or mindless. You may become a very confident and knowledgeable genius.

Drawing on the cards to explain this statement, the first card gives me "You are going to try to pull a Twilight Sparkle from My Little Pony where she just wants to read and learn, and not really put much focus on making friendships" energy. You're going to hyperfixate so hard on learning that you're going to potentially forget about other things. It happens to the best of us.

The second card gives me the impression that your confidence may come off as stern when factually correcting people. To that I say: That's okay, it happens, it's the burden of being confident in your statements. You're right, but if you feel bad about how much you destroyed someone's argument, you can still reach out.

The third card tells me that you're going to get a ton of rewarding feedback from your efforts which will enable your academic weapon abilities. You're

1. You
The person seeking guidance

2. Defense
Thoughts and actions that will best guard you

3. Heart of the Situation
Self explanatory, the situation at hand.

4. Offense
Thoughts and actions that will best affect everyone around you

6. Someone Else
Who you can turn to for guidance

5. Where the situation is headed
If this response is satisfying, do not follow the 6th card.

going to be suffering from success.

Your fourth card kind of ties in with the aforementioned point of obliterating people factually. You'll become so good at finding weak points in people's logic, statements, or methodologies, that you'll just want to use them all to good advantage at once. The card warns against quick thinking, and encourages you to take it easy. Give things more thought before drawing upon them.

The fifth card suggests that you might get hit with one of the worst things that can affect your executive function, or your flow. You will be the emperor who's new groove gets interrupted. This will be a crucial period to take time to recover, through being kind to yourself. Take breaks and be kind to yourself. You'll get back on track.

Now, if all this sounded like it didn't make sense, or if you overall think you need some guidance after reading this, here is your...

The Sixth Card - Who Can Help?

The demon that represents potential guidance is Adramelech. The divination is "beware of judging by appearances, especially those who dress to impress but have no substance behind their style". This card suggests that there may be someone who you may think is suited to give advice, but is in fact a deceiver, and is not a reliable resource. You'll know where to find the help you need if you look for someone confident, and that doesn't dress in a way that seems like they're trying hard to make a point.

Thank you once again for your submission, I hope it could have provided some guidance, or comfort to you. If it didn't, take it with a grain of salt.

If anyone else has any questions they'd like answered through Tarot cards, please feel free to submit them. I will be happy to interpret your most pressing curiosities through the cards.

Until next time.

MOROSCOPES

As divined by Belle "Stickler" Henderson | MECH III

ARIES

TAURUS

Your capacity to wear a hat is going to change this month. if youre currently a hat person, pretty soon wearing that beanie is going to make you feel like an imposter, and if you could never rock a hat now, in three weeks itll be weird to see you without one.

GEMINI

If you don't know who Oedipus is, the stars suggest familiarizing yourself with his whole deal. And fast.

CANCER

In your frantic search for a job, the conversations you have this month are going to all turn into networking conversations. By the end of the month your network on LinkedIn is going to be so expansive and you won't even have to think about how much eye contact you're making anymore.

LEO

Try to avoid household tasks this month, as you will have an affinity for breaking household appliances, shopping bags, dishes. just stop being a good roommate in all regards honestly

VIRGO

The stars see video essays in your future. Might be wise to learn something useful or applicable to your life, but a 4 hour deepdive into a youtube horror series you've never heard of will be much more rewarding bees. it's just bees for you this month. sorry.

LIBRA

SCORPIO

the stars suggest investing in scented candles this month. If your house doesnt smell like a bakery, a flowershop, and

SAGITTARIUS

This month you are going to be subjected to a relentless amount of laplace transforms. I hope you have a good memory, because they're going to be throwing transforms (and inverse transforms) that would make Pierre Simon (Marquis de Laplace) himself shudder.

CAPRICORN

The most mundane things are going to bring you to tears this month. thankfully, they are most often going to be followed by something silly. I'm talking a real rollercoaster ride in the span of two minutes

AQUARIUS

The stars recommend keeping an eye on the skies this month, as the discovery of a tenth planet in our solar system is likely to happen (the ninth planet being the inevitable reintegration of pluto as a planet) (welcome back comrade). If youre looking up at the right time, that tenth planet could be named after you

PISCES

Make an effort to pet more cats this month. go out of your way when youre walking somewhere to follow a cat, invite yourself over to peoples houses who have cats, the whole works. the stars guarantee itll be worth it.

USES FOR THE CHARLATAN

blanket for when your friend at a sleepover forgets to give you one roll oregano joints for the charlatan editors

Slide around the floor with it under your feet on a hardwood floor and pretend you're skating on the canal

use it as first grade reading level material to teach finlay how to read

For paper airplane competition material? Cause that's the furthest the Charlatan will ever travel in its life time away from its stands.

Now brought to you by:

James "العربي" Dublin
BIOELEC III

Q.
How do I not fail my classes?
- Shanna Peper

A.
Build a time machine, go back 2 years and unsat those courses. Far easier than passing them.

Q.
My sanity has left me and now the only thing i can think of is transistors and alcohol. How do i get it back?
- James Classen

A.
Clearly you haven't discovered weed a MOSFETs, cannot get any more exciting

Q.
It appears someone is attempting to dump an obscene amount of crickets in my room. what can I do to protect myself and my loved ones from this oncoming cricket hello cape?
- Jason Valente

A.
You will rue the day you responded to that email and never be able to enter a petsmart again

Q.
Help I'm meeting my SO's parents! WHAT DO I WEAR???
- Aiko Derry

A.
What you wear and not wear will send a different message, personally I would choose nothing cause that I can respond to any argument with I shagged your mum, there might be only one more after that

Q.
how do i deal with the fury of being alive under current circumstances and the rage that everything gets an opportunity to induce in me in a kind and healthy fashion?
- Coward

A.
Monday January 29th 2024 5:05 pm
EST 45°24'11.7"N 75°42'43.3"W

Q.
Help! My roommate doesn't have a bed frame in his room. What's the best way to convince him that he needs one?
- Chris Meiling

A.
The chirpin-ing is coming, he might not know when, might not know how, but it comes

Q.
My prof is a kind person and is very effective at teaching. What should I channel my hatred towards instead?
- Anger Eddy

A.
The poltergeist of mackenzie that keeps shitting lead into the pipes, thats what happens when you don't clean up solder kids

Q.
I need to move a bookshelf, but need to remove everything in it first. How do I get rid of it?
- Cynthia Cairns

A.
Give them to the aero D's they need something to burn to keep warm this time of year.

Got a Problem?
Need Some... Shitty Advice?

JAMES CAN "HELP"!

Write in to C-Eng Speaks! We want to ~~exploit your problems~~ hear from you!
The most recent submissions form can be found at: linktr.ee/TheIronTimes

February Crossword Word Search

~(Because deadlines got me deadlined)~

Assembled By: Michael "Crabstick" Loh - EngPhys VI

L U B R I C A N T T O P P I N G C Y C L E S Z S Y
 F D I G I T T R U N C K L H A E C R W C E P J T S
 R K N I N T E R F E R E N C E F I T A R I E Q R L
 I V D D R I V E T R A I N E Q B D Q U N E N O O I
 C W I R P O R I F I C E G A U G E S Z G K E Y K P
 T E N J N U G G G Q K H V E R H S S R H R T F E R
 I M G X D A M P E N I N G W X I S A U P Y R O O I
 O S E T N V F P S U M E F A F P H H S C S A O N N
 N J U M H F L U I D S B F W Y C A T P O T T T S G
 S V C B B R G N K P Z A L S S H F N I L S I P L D
 T T F P R E U I W I D L H I B T T S D N U N O I L
 I V I G O O R S S F L L D S U T R J O E B G U N A
 R U D F S T U S T I M P A C T D R I V E R O N R T
 W N S B F I E T J L G E C B T W T F P R T I D D T
 E J E K V N H M I Y Z E A R R C V Z A P G L E L I
 L S X B D Z E K P N F N E N E O I R S E E L B M C
 D C T R B R S S O A E H H R S R C D H F P R I C E
 I L A T E X Y I S B C A E R S I E N B U W Z S U S
 N H N U W E T S U M P M H A G N G K O I B I C M L
 G N T A L A P N U D C M E G D G R C S D E P H P I
 U R K N G K Q U J M T E P R I G I D D D S I O I P
 R A F N Q R I T Z P P R O P S O P O D S D N K S G
 S I O S H R I N K A G E L T S C R E W A L I E S A
 C L E A V A G E G E M B E D D E D G O I T O O L X
 E S U C K S Q U E E Z E B A N G B L O W B N W D O

Can you find all 59 of these engineering terms?

People keep laughing whenever we engineering students talk about lubricating our nuts with penetrating oil. idk what the joke is?

- |              |                 |                    |                        |                   |                 |
|--------------|-----------------|--------------------|------------------------|-------------------|-----------------|
| 1 Crank      | 12 Orificegauge | 23 Pump            | 33 Erection            | 44 Latticeslip    | 55 Subroutine   |
| 2 Shaft      | 13 Thrust       | 24 Stroke          | 34 Plug                | 45 Choke          | 56 Digittrunck  |
| 3 Pole       | 14 Expander     | 25 SuckSqueezeBang | 35 Shrinkage           | 46 Stiffness      | 57 Screw        |
| 4 Member     | 15 Rod          | Blow               | 36 Interferencefit     | 47 Caulking       | 58 Toppingcycle |
| 5 Nut        | 16 Rigid        | 26 Fluids          | 37 Vicegrip            | 48 Sextant        | 59 Impactdriver |
| 6 Coupled    | 17 Tool         | 27 Wetsump         | 38 Suction             | 49 Cumpiss        |                 |
| 7 Lubricant  | 18 Binding      | 28 Drysump         | 39 Rack                | 50 Ballpeenhammer |                 |
| 8 Hardness   | 19 Strippers    | 29 Embedded        | 40 Pinion              | 51 Latex          |                 |
| 9 DriveTrain | 20 Load         | 30 Discharge       | 41 Elongation          | 52 Penetratingoil |                 |
| 10 Head      | 21 Cleavage     | 31 Fissure         | 42 Dampening           | 53 Slipring       |                 |
| 11 Buttress  | 22 Rail         | 32 FootPound       | 43 Frictionstirwelding | 54 Oring          |                 |

FEBRUARY

Passport stamp events are now marked with these nifty icons!

2024

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
				Ciena X SCESoc <sup>1</sup> Coding Competition 4:00 – 7:00pm @ AT 102 D-Eng-D Weekly Meeting	2	3 Charity LAN CUGES w/SREESoc 10:30am – 4:00pm
4 →	5 ←	6 CSCE Industry Night	7 SOCIETAL WARS BITSoc Archery Tag 5:00 – 10:00pm @ 1860 Bank St	8 D-Eng-D Weekly Meeting SCESoc Intro to Cybersecurity 6:00 – 7:00pm @ ME 3380	9	10 EWB Blueprints for Change @ Richcraft CPRT CDR CO2 Car Comp 10:00am – 11:00am
11	12 Concrete Feet 5:00pm – 6:00pm SCE Town Hall 6:30pm – 8:30pm Lettuce Club 6:30pm – 8:00pm	13 Sugar CUBES w/CUBES 6:00pm – 8:00pm	14 V-Day [Redacted] Night	15 Ice CUBES w/CUBES 6:00pm – 8:00pm @ Lansdowne Park D-Eng-D Weekly Meeting	16	17
18	19	20	21	22 CUDL Cad Workshop 1 6:00pm – 8:00pm D-Eng-D Weekly Meeting	23	24
25	26 CSES General Elections Town Hall 6:00 – 11:55pm	27	28	29 D-Eng-D Weekly Meeting

SUBMIT TO NEXT MONTH'S Iron Times

SEND US YOUR:

- Articles
- Pictures
- Answers to C-Eng Speaks

WE WANT IT ALL!

Most recent submissions can be found at:
linktr.ee/TheIronTimes

HAVE YOU HEARD OF

THE DOORS?

ITS A CANTEEN / LOUNGE FOR STUDENTS IN ENGINEERING AND DESIGN!

A PLACE TO CHILL ...

75¢ MUFFINS!

WE HAVE THE CHEAPEST FOOD ON CAMPUS

PLAY SOME EUCHRE!

SANDWICHES!

DRINKS AND MORE

COFFEE

OR STUDY BETWEEN CLASSES.

VOLUNTEER RUN
BY STUDENTS FOR STUDENTS

LOCATED AT
3342 MACKENZIE BUILDING

LOOK FOR THE BLUE TARDIS DOORS.

EDITORS-IN-CHIEF:
EM SMULDERS

VP PUBLICATIONS:
EMILY KNOBEL

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

OPTIONAL MIDTERMS

KNOBELS PATIENCE

DANIEL LARSON COURT CAM

ISSUE MADE POSSIBLE BY:

THAT SWEET SWEET LOVIN

THE EDITORS OWN HOMEMADE EDIBLES

ESTROGEN INDUCED PSYCHOSIS